

DEBORAH PLATT MAJORAS

Deborah Majoras currently serves on several Boards of Directors, including for the American Express Company, which she joined in 2022, and for Valero Energy Corporation, chairing the Nominating, Governance & Public Policy Committee from 2015-2022 and the Sustainability & Public Policy Committee from 2022 to the present. Majoras also is a non-Executive Director of Brunswick Group, a leading global critical issues advisory firm. Current non-profit board service includes The First Tee Foundation, the University of Virginia School of Law Foundation, and Westminster College. From 2019-2025, Majoras was a member of the Executive Committee of the United States Golf Association, for which she chaired the Equipment Standards, Governance, and Nominating Committees. Other previous Board service includes The Christ Hospital Health Network and the Legal Aid Society of Greater Cincinnati.

In 2022, Majoras retired from The Procter & Gamble Company, where she spent more than 12 years as the company's Chief Legal Officer and Corporate Secretary and as a member of the Global Leadership Council. In her role, she led a global organization of some 500 people responsible for the broad scope of legal, compliance and governance; government relations and public policy; and brand protection.

Prior to P&G, Majoras served as Chairman of the U.S. Federal Trade Commission from 2004-2008, leading an independent enforcement agency of roughly 1100 employees, with consumer protection and antitrust jurisdiction over most sectors of the economy. She co-led, with the Attorney General of the United States, the President's Identity Theft Task Force. From 2001-2003, Majoras was the Principal Deputy Assistant Attorney General for the Antitrust Division of the United States Department of Justice, leading the Division's civil and regulatory antitrust enforcement programs. Prior to government service, Majoras was a partner at international law firm, Jones Day, and before that, a law clerk to the Honorable Stanley S. Harris in federal district court in Washington, D.C.

Majoras received her law degree from the University of Virginia School of Law (Order of the Coif) in 1989, and her B.A. from Westminster College, summa cum laude, in 1985.

Majoras resides in McLean, Virginia with her husband, John, and has three grown stepchildren and four grandchildren.
