

Steve Jennings

Steve Jennings is the former CEO of Monitor Group and an accomplished strategy expert, operating executive, and corporate board member with over 30 years of experience advising Global Fortune 500 c-suite executives and Boards of Directors.

Steve is currently the Lead Independent Director and Chair of the Governance Committee of Analog Devices Inc., a global semiconductor company. He is also a Non-Executive Director and Nomination Committee Chair of International Workplace Group plc., the world's largest hybrid workspace provider with a network in over 120 countries. Steve's previous public company board service includes Aspen Technology, Inc., now owned by Emerson, a provider of software and services for the process industries, where he was the Lead Director and Chair of the Board and LTX-Credence Corporation, a semiconductor test equipment manufacturer now owned by Cohu, Inc., where he was the Chair of the Compensation Committee.

Steve retired as a senior Strategy Principal with a track record of leadership at Deloitte. Steve was a member of both Deloitte's U.S. Board of Directors and the Deloitte Touche Tohmatsu Global Board of Directors. Prior to Deloitte, Steve was the CEO/Managing Partner and Board member of Monitor Group, a top-tier global strategy firm, where he held increasing leadership roles culminating in his election as CEO in 2006.

Steve is the Chair of the Board of Directors of the venture philanthropy non-profit New Profit, Inc. He received a B.A. from Oxford University, where he studied Philosophy, Politics and Economics as a Marshall Scholar. He earned his undergraduate degree in Economics at Dartmouth College.